The annual school meeting of the falls district was held in the school-house on Sachem street on Friday of extra supplies for funigating purvening with an attendance of sixteen. President William G. Henderson called the meeting to order at 7.30 o'clock and and it adjourned ten minutes later, after an altogether harmonious session. Clerk C. Leslie Hopkins read the warning, the report of the district committee and his own statement as treasurer and the two latter were satisfactory and were accepted. To serve as members of the district committee C. Leslie Hopkins and William H. Murphy were nominated for three years and Arthur G. Crowell for one year. The clerk cast one ballot and they were elected. Jeremiah Lynch was reelected tax collector in the same manner. The compensations of these officers remain the same as in former years. A tax of two mills, payable April 1st, 1911, was laid to meet the current expenses of the district for the feature of the committee, and the usual appropriation of $15-was made for the benefit of the school library. The final business was the election of a committee of three to fix and approve the bonds of the treasurer and collector and to take the place of the late Charles H. Preston Frank H. Pul.

PICKING THE WEATHER. Simple Signs That Make the Official Forecast Unnecessary.

There can be no doubt, at least in the minds of those who have been at pains to acquire the old weather fore and to watch by its aid the changes of the weather, that the wise ones of long ago had unfailing barometers in their fields, by the waysides and even at their hearts, whereby they had an nterest in nature which some of us might do worse than try to recover. Here are the signs which have been tested:

There will be fine weather if the clouds at sunset fly to the west, if the sun is then surrounded by a circle of white clouds.

white clouds.

If the sunset clouds have purple in their red there will be fine weather, but if only red there will be rain next day. A border of black to the red in the southeast improves the weather. Each may be expected that day when the sun rises pale or a light red, but not until the following day should the suariae clouds be red.

There will be rain that day should dark clouds gather and remain in the west.

Wright, on Fisher's Island. Thursday. Torrents of rain and an impenetrable fog alternated throughout the entire day. The most important day of the encampment had been planned for the militlamen, target practice with full service charges. The fog which shut down over Long Island sound like a blanket upset the well laid plans of commanders. Nothing but drills have been held thus far in the mortar batteries. Firing was to have begun that day also. As an aftermath of hazing which took place at the camp several nights ago it has been learned that one man lies in the field hospital in a serious condition. The unfortunate guardsman, after undergoing the programme of blanket tossing, involuntary cold water baths and falling tents, was treated to an external application of oil of cloves and an acid. A large amount of mustard was also administered internally. The soldier was badly burned by the acid and his digestive organs were seriously deranged by the fiery dose.
